
You Had Been

YOU ARE DEAD

Every second that you do or dont do anything, a version of you dies.

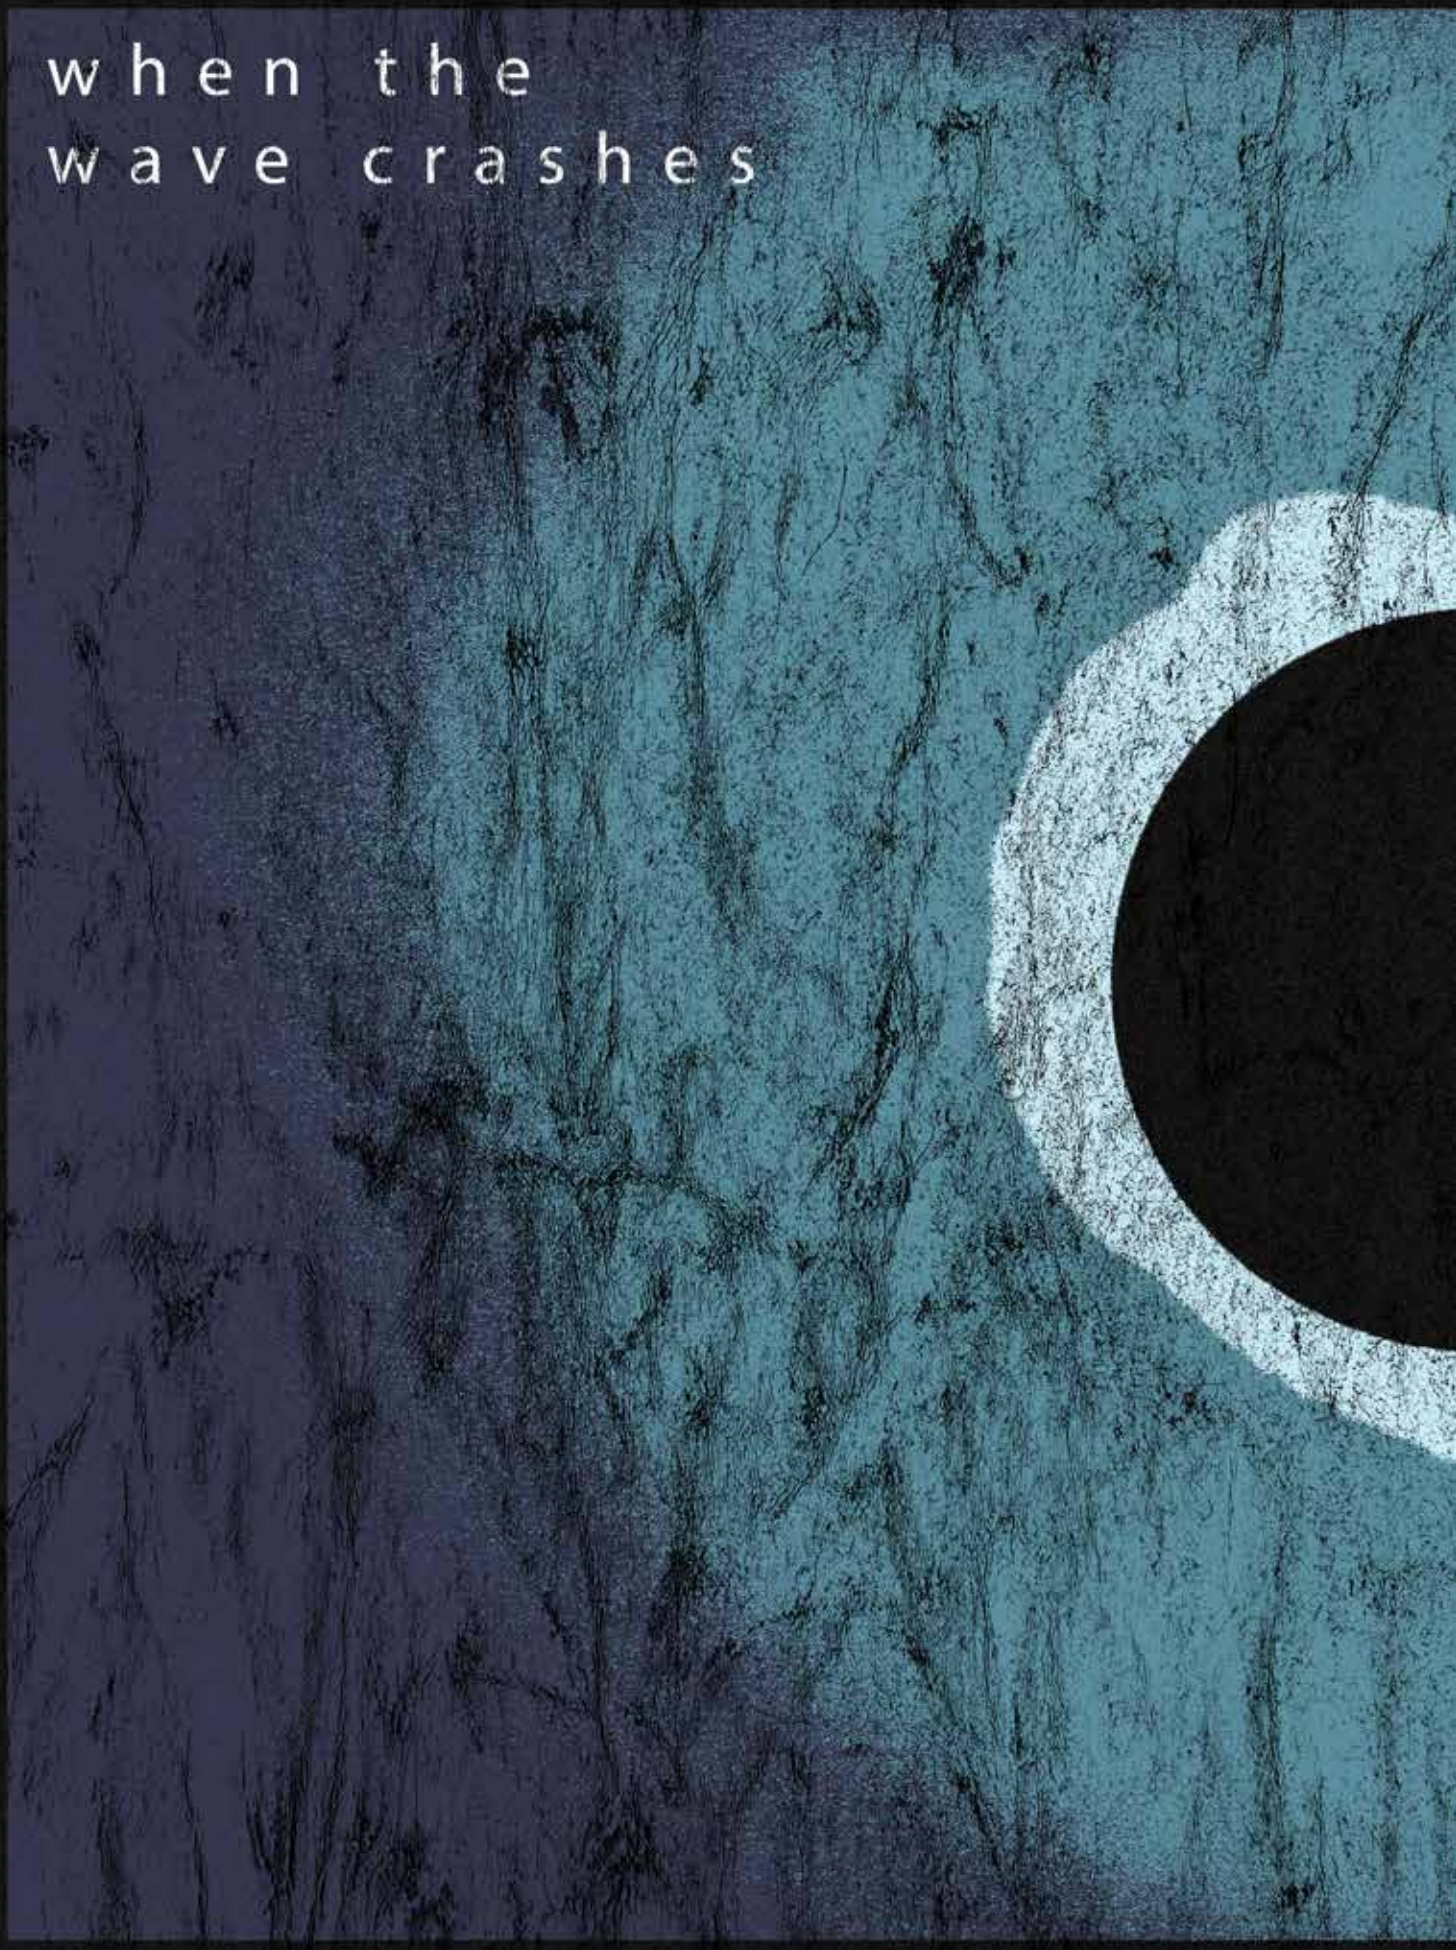

the baby
the student
the artist
the believer
the scholar
the parent
the lover
the boy
the woman
the dreamer
the survivor
the victim
the loser

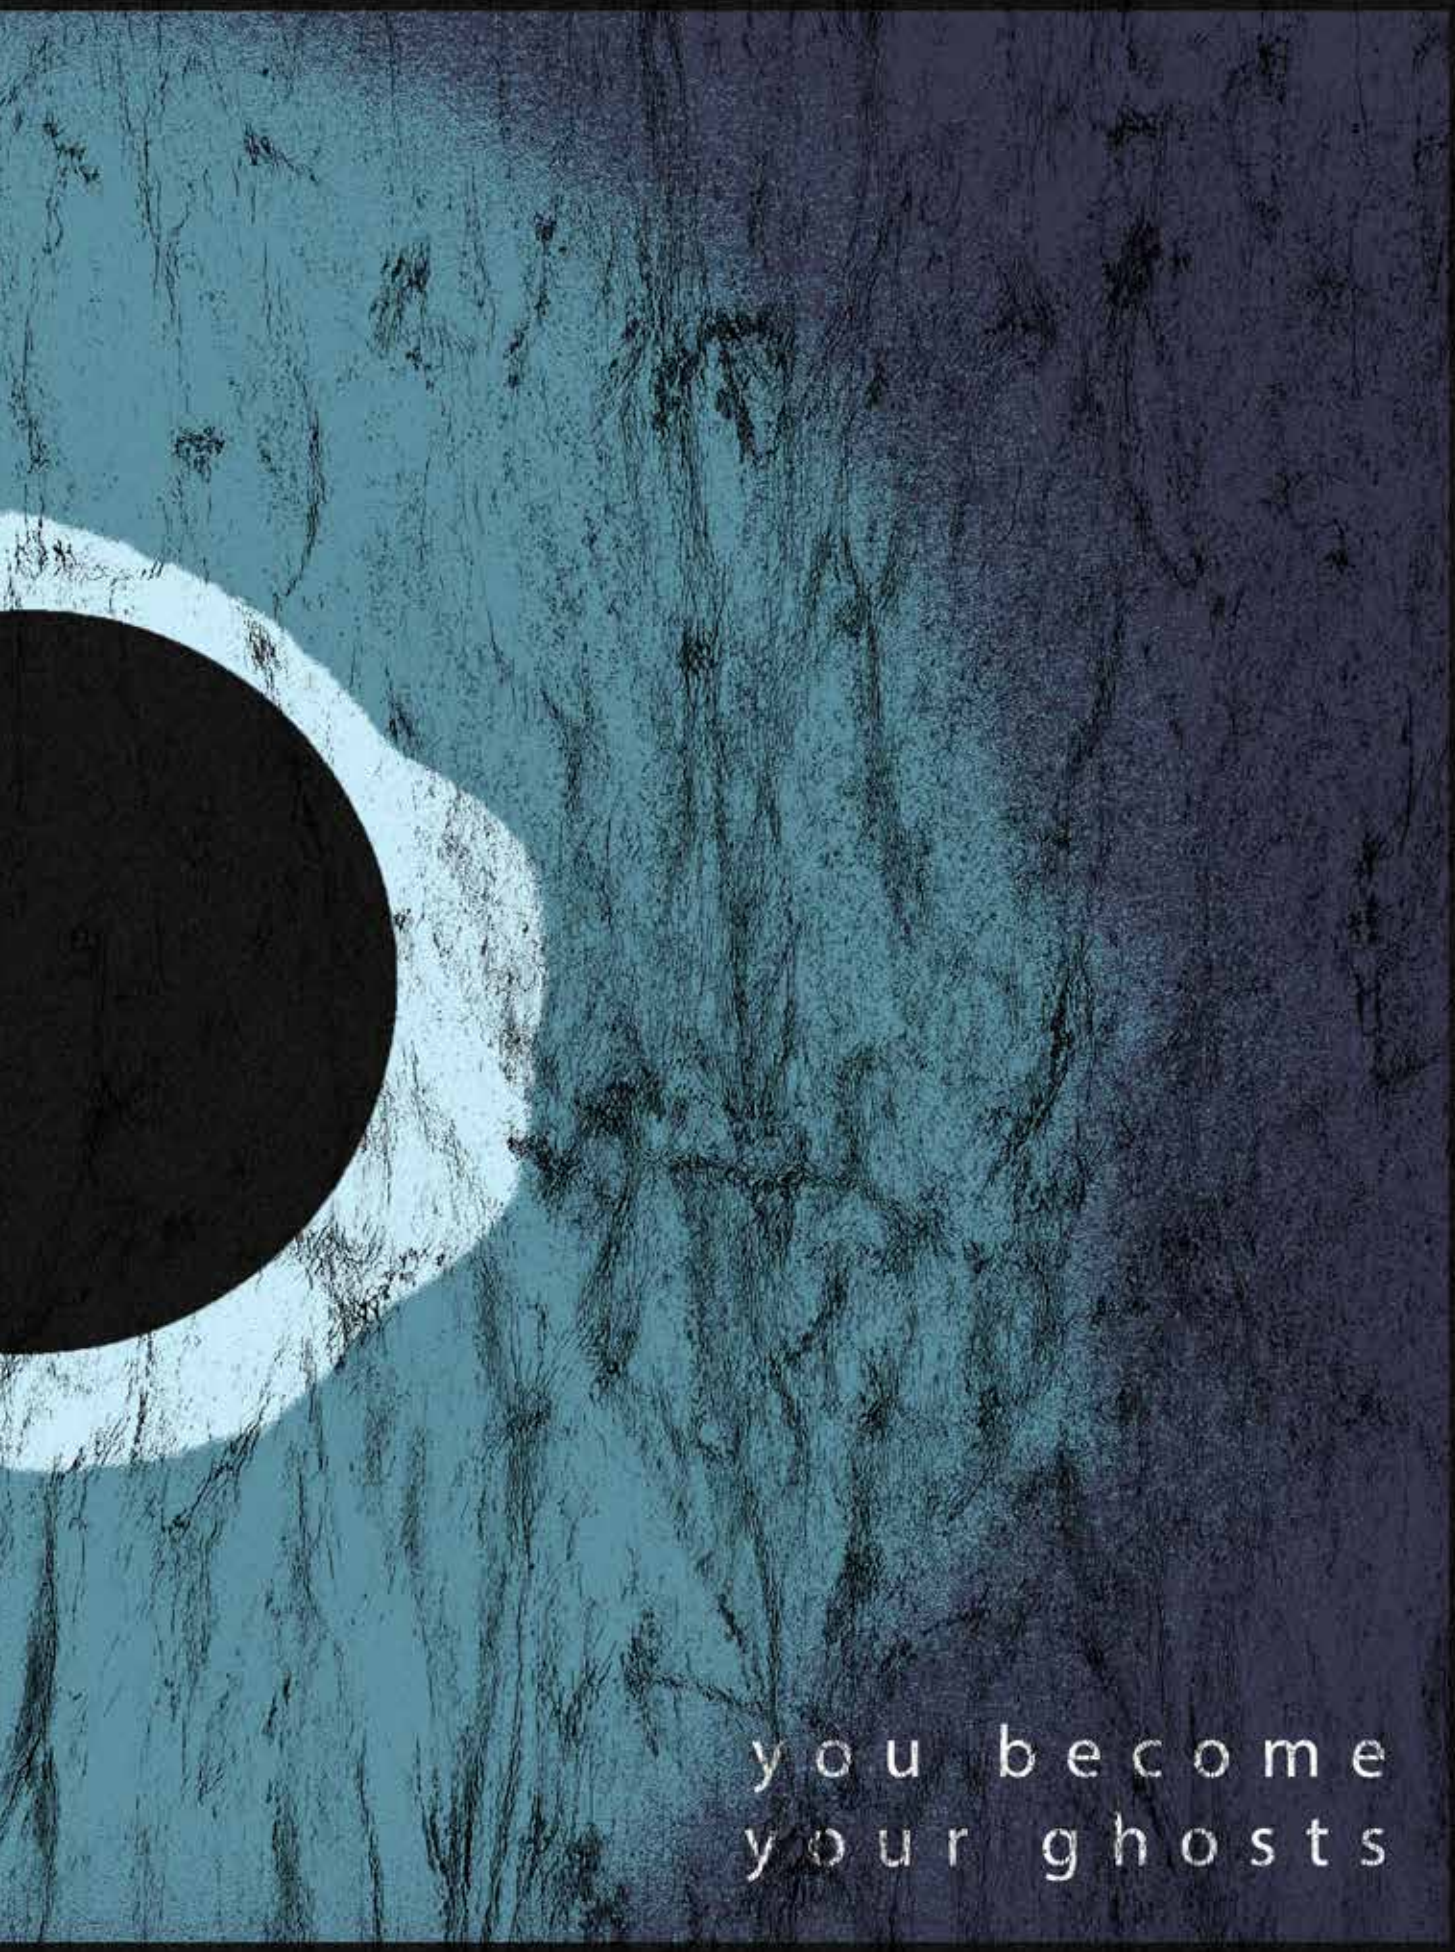

we dont fear the millions of years before we are born why worry about after non-existance is a state that we have safly inhabited for eons

A WAVE ISNT SEPERATE FROM THE OCEAN

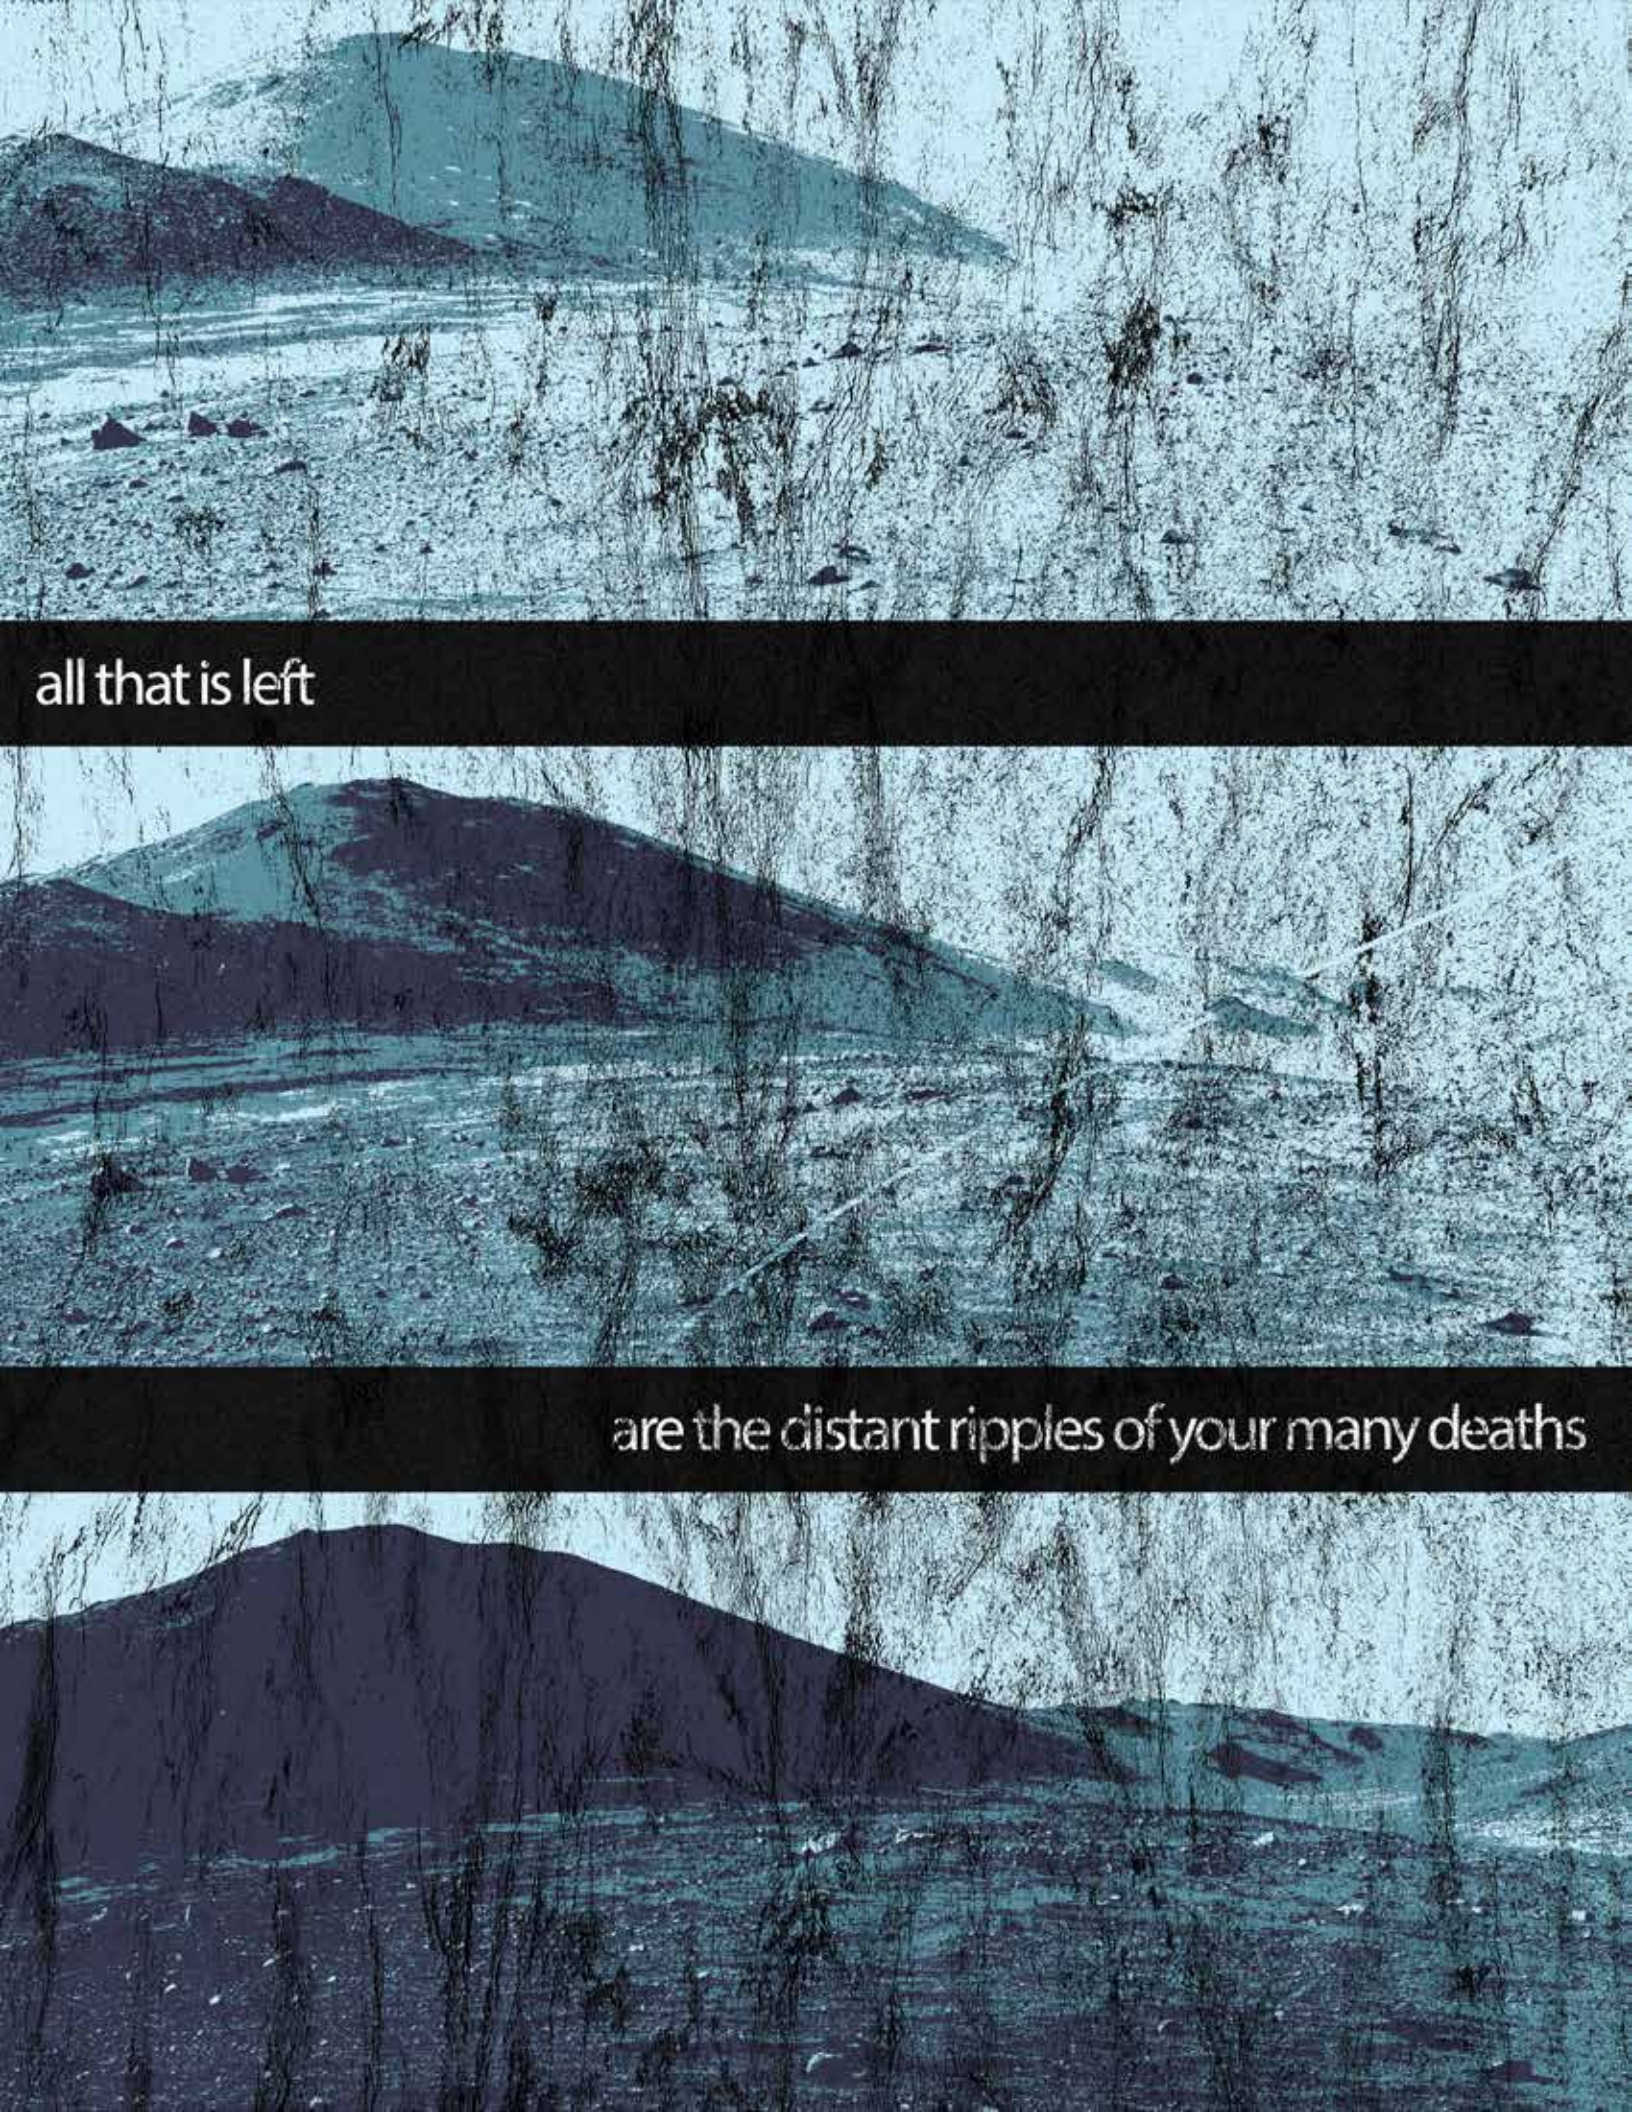

IT'S A MOMENTARY STATE OF BEING

when the wave crashes

you become your ghosts

your name is still spoken pictures still seen
genes still present
matter still composed Until the
ghosts die too

energy cannot
be destroyed,
only transformed

all that is left are the distant ripples of your many deaths

your choice to die is a choice to live